ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for managing a state of an external apparatus connected thereto includes a database storing the state of the external apparatus, a managed object (MO) managing the state of the external apparatus, and a control interface for the MO performing outer control from the database. The MO is provided in the database and realized by an application, and the interface is provided in the MO.